NSS celebrated world environment day as part of World environment day which is celebrated annually on 5th June to encourage awareness and action for the protection of the environment. All volunteers planted saplings in their home premises and we done an album of the same .

Hands-on training

Another activity organized by NSS was a hands-on training (conducted in online mode) on how to manage home derived non -degradable wastes and the session was handled by one of the NSS volunteer. The programme enlightened the students on different waste management practices and economic means of handling wastes. Students were able to make use of used materials such as plastic bottles and polythene covers into attractive showpieces. This effort emphasized the practical approach to dealing with wastes in our surroundings

Tree sapling planting

As part of the NCC day, tree saplings were planted at the college premises and a pledge was made to protect them as per the instructions of the Battalion.

Enumeration and identification of trees in the campus by Biodiversity Club members.

Identification and taxonomical study of herbaceous plants (belonging to 12 families) of the campus was done as part of the Final year project work by 24 students of Department of Botany.

Use of energy efficient equipment in the science lab, use of LED bulbs, regular practice of switching off of electrical appliances after usage are measures adopted to reduce power consumption. The solar power generated is fully utilized for the functioning of office.

Solid waste was recycled as vermi-compost by means of two pilot units in the Departments of Botany and Zoology. This was done solely with the effort of students. They actively participated from the initial step through the running phase till the harvesting of compost. This was initiated with future perspectives such as giving a hands on experience to the students on how to transform the home derived waste to an organic manure and also aimed at practicing the same on an extensive basis in future.

Water efficient landscaping was done by the PTA. A rainwater harvesting system was installed in front of Block III with funding from TDB, Thiruvananthapuram. The filter for the same was designed by the PG students of Department of Physics. This was done as a means of water conservation strategy.

The green campus initiatives by various clubs play a crucial role in developing a positive attitude among the students and staffs in adopting sustainable lifestyles and practices in their future life
